A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring:
There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Mr. John Collins
Superintendent of Schools

Congratulations to the Class of 1960 on the occasion of your graduation!

As individuals and as a group, you have displayed many signs of potentially great citizenship. It is my sincere wish that you advance in your training that you may better assume the responsibilities of the future.

Congratulations to you, the Class of 1960, upon the successful completion of your high school education! To each of you this event has a different meaning, but to all, it is an accomplishment,—another milestone has passed on the way to a full, happy, and successful life.

As you embark on a new decade, you should reflect on the one coming to an end. The Korean conflict, the continuing cold war between representatives of freedom and slavery, inflation, the devaluation of the dollar, increased crime, etc. These and many other socio-economic problems have plagued us between 1951 and the present. Unfortunately few of them have been solved. We call them to your attention simply because you have lived with them during your school years. You have studied and discussed them in class. Now you have to face them and live with them and assist in seeking their solution, —a solution that will require courage, conviction, and sincerity.

Now, as you start in the decade ahead, remember that our best wishes go with you. Adhere to the lessons you have learned both in the classroom and your extra curricular activities, mainly those activities which develop leadership, learning, and social graces. Thus will you be fortified to meet your most exacting and demanding teacher—EXPERIENCE.

"In trouble again"

Mr. Robert Saba
Miss Marguerite MacDonald
Mr. Bernard McMahon

The privilege of working with the "Class of '60" was indeed a pleasure, in fact, an honor, and in reality, a memorable experience. This class has inexorably displayed an ability to achieve the highest measure of success possible—to work as a team, without prejudice, free from bigotry, and with respect for his fellow man.

The deterioration of youth, a current problem of the first magnitude, has been challenged by the "Class of '60", in an unbounding determination to destroy this most repugnant evil, but far more important, it has been met with a zealous fortitude founded upon the Christian ideals of clean spirit, mind and deed.

May we, your class advisors, wish each and every Senior the fortune to maintain the courage of his convictions, and to further their goals in life with a spirit manifested in the basic premise of success—determination!

Valedictory — "Mushrooms on the Horizon"

Lewis Gardner

Today, as we leave one stage in our lives to begin another, our prospects are not all good. Mankind faces terrifying threats; the life of each of us is in immediate danger.

Too often the extent of our jeopardy is underestimated. Too often, when it is recognized, nothing is done.

A tailor once told a man who had ordered a coat from him, "It will be ready in thirty days."

"Thirty days!" the man said. "Why, the Lord created the whole world in six days."

"Yes," said the tailor, "and have you taken a good look at it lately?"

In far less time, just a few minutes while half-a-dozen buttons are pushed, everything can be destroyed, the human race wiped out.

Of course, it still has taken us twelve years to get the diplomas we are waiting for this afternoon.

The world, part of which is given traditionally to graduating classes, is unmistakably a mess. We may be living in a period of transition leading to a better world or else to disaster.

Danger surrounds us. First is a concrete threat — the possibility of war and death. Devices exist that can send destruction to all parts of the earth. We cannot feel secure even in the knowledge that we have the means to destroy half the world, maybe before the other half destroys us.

Our class is aware of the threat. We were born during a war; we grew up during one. We were learning to walk as man was learning to destroy whole cities. We grew up knowing we might die at any minute from nuclear brimstone. Before we knew square roots, we knew how to crouch under our school desks, to hide somehow from the radioactive fist of Satan.

We know that our country and our prized way of living have strong enemies who will kill in order to conquer. But the second danger facing us is our greatest enemy. It is the sickness within ourselves, the disease of breaking down.

We see the symptoms. We have been losing many of today's important peacetime contests, and we see we could lose also those of war. In this very time of possible disaster, most people are showing fantastically little interest in national and international affairs. The increase in crime in the past few years has been cataclysmic. We teenagers are part of what has been characterized as the sick generation and the beat generation.

The causes of this disease lie in our fear of the physical danger we are in. For one thing, we huddle together like reindeer in a blizzard for protection. We mass together for mutual praise and assurance. This, of course, has produced the well-publicized conformity of our time.

Nearly everyone conforms. Even those who consider themselves the most militant of non-conformists find the need to band together, and they form tribes of their own, like the beatniks.

We have a love of the familiar, the popular, a hatred of the unusual, the unconventional, the new. Whoever challenges the sovereignty of perfection of the tribe's uniformity is kicked and booed and, fearing this punishment, we seldom challenge. Little Johnny won't learn his spelling lesson if ignorance is the standard of his friends. Mr. Harris won't support an egg-head for President if Mr. Jones, Mr. Shaw, and Mr. Brown find that a popular father image or a grinning image of adolescence is more gratifying.

We have also fallen into the pattern of eat, drink, and be merry — we'll probably die tomorrow. Moral collapse may be fun for a while, but in the past, political collapse usually followed.

We've built barricades of shiny cars, big-screen television sets, and vacuum cleaners. They protect us for short periods of time from thinking about our problems, but they cannot protect us from fallout.

What can be done? The popular answer is: nothing — we'll just have to keep driving around in our maze without finding a way outside.

It is true that no one can change the world by himself, but still it is better to light a single candle than to curse the darkness. The lone wolf can at least howl.

The power may be with us to be the ones to determine the course of the future. It may be the best time in history, or the worst. The atom and the other works of technology either advance civilization or put an end to it. We may see a new flourishing of man's spirit, of its dissipation. We can live in peace, or under the constant threat of war or in the ruins left by war. Everything we value — freedom, beauty, our daily lives — may reach new heights, or crumble.

It is not likely that we shall take part in student revolutions like our foreign contemporaries — we don't need them; our form of government is the best man knows. But it is likely that we'll just sit back and cower in ignorant bliss while the world falls apart.

The hazard of disinterest is that, since the essential feature of democratic procedure is that the people make decisions, if they refuse to act there will be either no action or else action without their approval. Democracy will have crept out. Sensible Americans will not allow this to happen.

As we graduate, the first class of a decade, we can begin to work to make this decade the first of man's best age. No one can deny our lack of safety or the need for hard work in the years ahead. We have many things to protect, much to protect it from. There's a lot to do, and the challenge is ours now.

Salutatory — "Milestones of Life"

By Judith MacMelville

This afternoon, we the class of 1960, wish to welcome each of you to our graduation ceremonies and to express our sincere appreciation to our teachers, parents and friends who have guided us thus far through our long years of school and have made today a milestone in our lives.

A milestone is a marker placed beside a highway to indicate how far we have gone along the road that we are travelling and how much further we have to go before we reach our destination. It is not a stopping place. It does not indicate that we have finished our journey except when we have made up our minds to travel no further. Even then it should mark only a resting place at which we plan for the next part of the journey. One thing is certain, we must go either forward or backward. We seldom stay put at a milestone.

All through life there are milestones that we must pass. How we pass them whether with success or failure, is up to us. We can be told what is right, and what to do, but unless we believe in it and do it ourselves, we may not be successful.

Thus far in our life we have passed many milestones. Many of us remember our first day of school and our teachers, as well as the new friends we made. That was one of our first big milestones.

Then our entrance into junior high school was another milestone, one which we had to pass because we could not turn back. When we entered high school, that was the next important milestone which most of us passed eagerly, for it was another step towards our future successes and failures.

And so this afternoon is another milestone for us, but it will not be the last, nor will it be the hardest to pass. All through life there are milestones that give us a sense of achievement and satisfaction as we pass them.

Each graduating class arrives at this milestone and our class is no exception. Some members have already mapped their future courses and will continue on their journey. Others who have been going along aimlessly may hesitate and stop to consider whether to continue on this road or go back and try another road which seems more interesting. If they decide to take a detour, after following it for a while, they will find that they have circled back to the main road again.

Life is seldom, if ever, static. We are always going one way or another. It is our duty as worthwhile citizens to keep moving forward and thus make the world a better place in which to live because of what we do.

The only road to success is moving forward all the way.

Class Essay — The Top of the Ladder

By Warren Layne

Fellow Students:

Tonight is a moment of great importance in the vast span of time which constitutes the duration of a lifetime. We are gathered here to step off the final rung in the preparatory ladder we have climbed during our twelve years of secondary school education.

As we glimpse down the ladder we gaze on the events of many fruitful and joyous years. We see a tiny village, growing out of small homes and businesses into a progressive, modern suburban town. In the gray mist which forms around the lower rung of the ladder we discover our past struggles, hopes, dreams, and desires all fading away into oblivious.

We have not passed through these past years of our lives in vain. With the help of our loving parents and our devoted teachers' inspiration and guidance we leave gained an unmeasurable amount of knowledge and understanding. Our fellow classmates have taught us many valuable lessons in social understanding and given us many hours of pleasure and enjoyment.

Yet, when we finally do turn away from this picture, we are able to look up towards a clear future with hope, understanding, and reassurance, confident that we will be able to face any prospects which may fall in our path.

We are now prepared to face a large enriched changing world; a world full of talk of nuclear energy and space travels; a world of conflicting political ideals; a world made up of countries with unile economic and social systems.

We are emerging from our secondary school training alert and ready to take over the responsibilities of leadership and initiative with which every freedom loving American is blessed by the Creator. No matter in what field of endeavor we plan to participate, whether it be business, higher education, or manual labor, we are sure to make a worthy contribution to society.

We may walk away from this field today with a proud sense of accomplishment and security after our long, hard climb to THE TOP OF THE LADDER.

ACTIVITIES

History of the Class of 1960

By Carol Randell

As the day of graduation draws nearer, many begin to wonder what it actually means. To some it signifies the completion of high school, but to others it brings to mind the past four years, their joys and their hardships. Let us go back four years to September, 1956.

In September we entered the high school building as Freshmen. I wonder if I could count all the times we became confused and sometimes lost in the long corridors. I remember very well how "big and influential" the Seniors had looked to us. Who would have thought that in four short years we would be in their places, entering the high school for the last September?

After we became accustomed to the ways of the school we performed our first duty as a class. Election of officers was held and Warner Allen was elected president, Ernest Moegelin vice president, Eileen Lepore secretary, and Carol Randell treasurer. We elected student council members by homeroom this year and Amanda Brabant, Eileen Cotter, Sandra Joseph, Ernest Moegelin, and John Tobey were elected.

At our first class meeting our advisors, Mrs. Trearchis and Mr. Scott were introduced to us. This meeting and the next were used to discuss our constitution, and finally it was adopted in February, 1957. One other thing was called to our attention: during the past summer one of our classmates, Priscilla Park, had died. On our own, we collected money and sent flowers. The remainder of this money was presented to the class to purchase some sort of remembrance. A committee consisting of John Tobey, Donna May, Jeanne Wood, and Jackie Leucher was appointed.

Before we realized it, the year was coming to a close, the Seniors voted Dottie Brisbois and Phil Washburn as most popular Freshmen. With finals over, we left school with our Freshman year behind us.

September, 1957, found us entering our Sophomore year with confidence. We had made it through our first year and were now eager to start our second. We elected class officers for the second time. They were John McCabe president, Ernest Moegelin vice president, Carole Parella treasurer, and Carol Gray secretary. Student Council members for our Sophomore year were Sandra Bouvier, Joan Marshall, and Charles Sweet.

In December, aided by our class advisors, Mrs. Trearchis and Mr. Bradbury, we held our first dance, the Mistletoe Hop. It was a Christmas dance, held in the gymnasium, and everyone entered into the spirit of the season.

It was during this year that our class, in memory of Priscilla Park, placed a map of Massachusetts in the high school library.

The Seniors voted Carole Perella and John McCabe as most popular Sophomores. Again, finals came, and school was over until September, 1958, when we would be Juniors.

Our Junior year began almost as our Freshman year had. For, with the new wing, we were just as confused as were the Freshmen. Of course, we didn't dare show it for fear of losing a little of our "influence." Our class officers, John McCabe president, Carol Randell vice president, Carole Perella treasurer, and Carol Gray secretary were elected and our third year at high school had begun. Student Council members were Charles Sweet vice president, Joan Marshall secretary, Sandra Bouvier, and Joyce Carlton. Plans were started immediately for our class dance.

In October, we held the Hula Hoop Hop with the gym gaily decorated in hula hoops to follow the current fad. Our advisors, Miss Barbargallo and Mr. Saba, aided us tremendously in our plans and preparations for the dance, which was a marked success.

The ring committee, comprised of John Tobey, Sandra Parrella, Arthur Boudreau, Eileen Lepore, and Steve Brennick, presented their report and the class selected the ring. In November we ordered our rings with a choice of five colors.

In February we held the second dance of our Junior year, The Royal Hearts Ball. The gym was decorated in red and white with beautiful hearts placed all around. The King and Queen of Hearts, Sheila Reynolds and Steve Brennick, were chosen and the evening ended in joy for everyone.

In the spring of this year the Rotary held a public speaking contest with the prize a trip to Quebec. Eddie Curtis was the winner and spent his April vacation as the guest of the Quebec Rotary. Later, the school was privileged to hear the winner of the Quebec contest speak in our auditorium.

During our spring vacation we were invited by Mr. Saba to hold an outing at his camp in Westford. Only Juniors could attend, but they were allowed to bring one guest. We left the high school in two buses and everyone had a joyous time.

Also in our Junior year Ruth Urbonas was selected as the Girls' State representative. Ruth spent a week at Bridgewater State Teachers College and later reported on her experience to her sponsors.

The most important event to many of us was the Junior-Senior Prom, Aquatasia in the Coral Cove, which was held on May 15, 1959. The gym was beautifully decorated in an underwater scene, highlighted by sunken treasure, mermaids, and numerous kinds of fish. Junior girls chosen as attendants were Arlene Boudreau and Ruth Urbonas.

After the prom we settled down to the business at hand, the remainder of our Junior year, and the rest of our school work. The Seniors voted Annette Visconti and John McCabe as most popular Juniors. Again finals came and went, as did the summer, and, in September, 1959, we entered high school as Seniors.

For the fourth and final time we elected our class officers. Elected to serve as Senior class officers were Steve Brennick president, Stanley Ashdown vice president, Carole Perella treasurer, and Sheila Reynolds secretary. Serving on the Student Council were Charles Sweet president, Sandra Bouvier secretary, Joyce Carlton treasurer, Warner Allen, and John Tobey.

On October 30, 1959, we held the Devil's Paradise which featured the "Chamber of Horrors." The Chamber was a tour of the cafeteria, open only to the girls present, and it proved to be quite exciting. Our class advisors, Miss MacDonald and Mr. Saba, were extremely helpful in this dance, which proved to be one of the most successful ever to be held in the high school.

In December a most important event was put on by the Senior class. On the evening of December 11, 1959, An Evening at the United Nations was presented in the Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium. It climaxed weeks of hard work for many of the Seniors. The program consisted of a meeting of the General Assembly. Every member nation of the United Nations was represented and, if they wished, could speak on the question of Tibet or of Red China. The evening was highlighted by speeches of the Dalai Lama of Tibet, a delegate of Red China, and representatives from West Germany. After the conclusion of the session, a buffet luncheon was held in the cafeteria. We also received many gifts from foreign nations. This event brought nation-wide recognition to our school and our town.

After the excitement of An Evening at the United Nations was over, we settled down to our work and started preparations for our yearbook and prom. Edward Curtis and John McCabe were chosen as co-editors of our yearbook.

In December we elected Kenneth Spinelli as our representative at Student Government Day at the State House in Boston. Edward Curtis, John Tobey, Warren Layne, Lewis Gardner, Kenneth Spinelli and Thomas DelVisco were chosen as Junior Rotarians.

In February we held a combined Junior-Senior dance, the first in the high school. It was called the Hospital of Hearts and the tickets were unique. They were test tubes with a roll of paper inside with a cork. It was quite successful and enjoyed by the participants.

At the end of April the Senior class play, The Diary of Anne Frank, was presented. The cast and play committee did an excellent job of reproducing the attic hideout of two Jewish families and one other man. The atmosphere was transferred directly to the audience by the antics of Ruth Urbonas, who portrayed Anne. A resounding applause was given as the final curtain fell. The members of the cast and the various committees should be congratulated for their performance.

The big event of the year was held on May 13, 1960. It was the Junior-Senior Prom, "Tropicana," held in the Everglades. The decorations were different from other years because we used cloth material instead of crepe paper. The roof was a solid piece of cloth with baskets of flowers hanging from it. In the center was a revolving light and on the floor was a wishing well, gaily decorated with flowers. The walls were of bamboo and cloth. Guests were seated at round tables. The queen chosen was Janet Small and the attendants were Geraldine Brown, Carol Gray, Dorothy DeGrasse, Elaine Laurud, and Lorraine Matthews.

After the prom, as graduation nears, many Seniors have left for jobs. Many others are still in school. Our four years of high school are nearly over, and we will always remember them with joy and happiness. Although many are happy to leave now, many more will be saddened when on Sunday, June 12, 1960, they receive their diplomas and our class marshal, Jeanne Wood, leads them off the field for the final time. Our years at Wilmington High School have been joyous and are filled with beautiful memories.

As we leave we would like to thank our parents, our teachers, our principal, our class advisors, and our fellow students for the aid they have given to us. Without them, our years in Wilmington High School would be empty. Because of them, we have spent four years filled with activity and learning for the future, in order that we may become successful and useful citizens of our town, our state, and our country.

Class Will

By Phyllis Sexton

We, the class of 1960, of Wilmington High School, in the town of Wilmington, county of Middlesex, and state of Massachusetts, being of sound mind do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament.

To the Faculty we leave their due share of peace and quiet and our appreciation for their patience and hard work.

To Miss MacDonald and Mr. Saba we leave our heartfelt thanks for all the advice and help they gave us. There are certainly no two class advisors more entitled to it.

To the Juniors we leave the new, permanent Prom decorations and better weather for next year's Prom.

To the Sophomores we leave two years to practice 100% attendance.

To the Freshmen we leave our three years of experience and hope that they will profit by it.

Stanley Ashdown leaves his surplus Prom dates to next year's undecided seniors.

Sandra Barchard leaves fragments of her twisted pony tail to Mrs. Webber to remember her by.

"Butch" Boudreau wills away his left half-back position to Greg Phillips.

Sandra Bouvier leaves her outstanding gymnastic abilities to Carol Kasabuski.

Paul Bova wills his favorite pair of woolen socks to Mr. Sullivan in trust that they will bring him good luck in next year's teacher-student basketball game. How he needs it!

Mary Ann Burns and Pat Manuel leave Wilmington High School to go to sunny California.

"Babs" Carpenter leaves her big hat and stick to next year's band leader with the hopes that she is bigger than "Babs".

Donna May leaves her "blue bomber" to Lorraine, Janice, and Barbara so to carry on with their famous Friday and Saturday nights they are all so fond of.

Eleanor Coulton leaves this thought for Miss Sharp, "I can't do it and I'm confused."

Regina MacDonald wills all her "worn-down" shorthand pencils to Mrs. Webber's next year's "white chicken."

John McCabe leaves the empty corridors of W. H. S. to Artie Hall.

Rita Paiva leaves her love letters from George to anyone who wants to marry a sailor.

Evelyn Pearson leaves her solemnity to Isabel Berry, who surely needs it.

Carole Perella leaves her hips to her "poor unfortunate" sisters.

Carol Randell leaves her athletic ability to her sister Joyce.

Carol Rauseo leaves a book entitled, "How to Skip School Successfully."

Janet Small leaves to Joan Butt, her booklet, "How Not to Keep Out of Trouble in Ten Easy Lessons."

John Smolski wills his many loves to next year's Casanova.

"Charlie" Sweet leaves his red hair to his "sisters," Carolyn and Mary.

Ruth Urbonas leaves behind her "susceptibility to measles and chicken pox" with the hope that none of next year's seniors will catch them.

Annette Visconti, Sandra Parrella and Ruth Sullivan leave all next year's typing for the Yearbook to the Senior typists.

To Time and Memory the class of 1960 leaves more than could possibly fit into a thick volume. The memories of our serious school undertakings, the friendships we found, school sports, dances, and clubs and even the silly things we've done, would all be in this volume. We would see our weaknesses and our strong points in a revealing light.

Let us hope that our high school life has paved the way for a bright future.

The WHS newspaper, the Hi-Lighter, had three editions this year. As it was unable to be printed within the school, it was published in the Wilmington Crusader.

A month before an issue was due to come out the editorial staff would meet with the Hi-Lighter's faculty advisor, Miss Quinn, to discuss and plan the editorials, features, columns, and straight news stories to be included in the coming issue. When the articles had been decided upon, a reporter was assigned to cover each story. A week before the paper was to be published all of the material would be turned in to the editorial staff, who edited and proofread the copy. Then the articles were typed up to be sent to the Crusader.

In addition to editorials there were many varied features in the Hi-Lighter. In each edition a boy and a girl from a different class was highlighted. The life story of a WHS teacher was presented in the Meet Your Teacher column. Girls' and boys' sports were covered. The Hi-Lighter had a literary section consisting of short stories, poems, and essays contributed by the students. Humor was represented by a 'Can You Imagine' column, name-puns, cartoons, jokes, and student-teacher polls.

Football Cheerleaders

This year's football cheerleaders, under the leadership of co-captains Annette Visconti and Carol Randell, did their best to bring up the spirit at the football games and rallies. Many new and different cheers were put to use and a great many of the old cheers were changed and given a new look. Dressed in their brand new, snappy-looking uniforms, the girls gave very fine support and enthusiasm to the team as well as the fans. The squad consisted of: Seniors: Annette Visconti and Carol Randell; Juniors: Joan Butt, Barbara Lynch, Judy Condrey, and Joyce Walden; Sophomores: Charlene Sullivan, Judy Doucette, Betsy Flight and Nancy Cutter.

The season was climaxed by the night rally preceding the annual Wilmington-Tewksbury game. The girls made two dummies to burn. One was a football player and the other a cheerleader. These dummies represented Tewksbury. A parade around the Common and the burning of the dummies completed the evening. The next day the boys continued the spirit of the night before by coming home with a 12-12 tie.

The Cheerleaders were all thrilled when they learned that one of their own members, Carol Randell, was awarded a trophy at the end of the school year. Carol was awarded the trophy for being selected as the outstanding girl athlete of the past school year (1959-1960).

Congratulations are in order for the following:

1) Ed Palino and Al MacDonald for being selected to the Lowell Suburban League All Star Team.

2) Phil Kavanaugh for being the recipient of the D.A.V. trophy. Phil was selected as the outstanding player during the traditional Thanksgiving Day rivalry game between Wilmington and Tewksbury High Schools.

3) Frank Mulhallen for doing an outstanding job as head manager ably aided by Richard Gage and Richard Page.

Field Hockey

Ruth Sullivan

The field hockey team this year broke even with four wins and four losses. The girls averaged twenty-three goals for the season while their opponents scored eighteen.

Our team started off by winning their first game and losing the next two. Then, they came back to win three in a row against Woburn, Chelmsford and Billerica respectively. The end of the season found the team losing its final two games in really fine hockey competition by a score of 1-0 in both games.

Members of the Varsity team were: Captain Ruth Sullivan, Joann Hancock, Patricia Manuel, Denise Baldwin, Carole Crispo, Nancy Cutter, Loretta Dawson, Marion Halpin, Janice Kimball, Mary Quandt, Mercy Strow, Carole Kasabuski, Elaine Sullivan.

Members of the J. V. team were: Donna Lee, Rosemary Elliot, Judith Halpin, Kathleen Harrington, Nancy Kemp, and Esther Plumer.

Credit for the team's success is due, in a large part, to the efforts of Coach Alice McCarthy and Captain Ruth Sullivan.

Congratulations to the girls is extended by the Captain.

Basketball Cheerleaders

Carol Randell

This year's basketball cheerleaders, under the direction of co-captains Joann Hancock and Sheila Reynolds, were split into two groups. They included Sandra Joseph, Theresa Enos, Janice Oldfield, Rita Bevilacqua, Patricia Brown, Virginia Casey, Nancy Allen, Nancy Elwell and Elaine Hersom. The girls cheered vigorously for both teams and gave much support to them in times of need. Many new and unusual cheers were put into use. The cheerleaders did their utmost to support the team, the Alumni and the Faculty games.

Congratulations to the following:

1) Al MacDonald and Bob Hastings for being elected to the Lowell Suburban League All Stars.

2) All the Seniors who received sweaters as a result of having earned their letters.

3) Dick Gage and Dick Page for doing a superb job as managers during the 1959-1960 season.

Seniors, So Long

by Diana Imbimbo

With the Senior graduation, we, the Juniors, found ourselves in a long-desired position. No longer would we have the status (and disadvantages) of "underclassman." Now we were in the spotlight, and now our academic and social activities would take first precedence. We have always had the fullest confidence in our future success, and the thought of its coming has given us great joy. Now, however, a shadow is cast over joy — that shadow is the spirit of the Class of 1960.

In September the Seniors (as we commonly referred to them) represented nothing more to us than our chronological superiors. Their existence was, to most of us, of very little consequence. The passing of the year, however, changed our attitude completely!

As a class, the fine quality of their academic achievements caused them to be praised more than once by those in authority, both within and without the school. As a class, their strong spirit and drive were constantly noted. Their reputation, deservedly, grew and grew. Needless to say, these are remarkable attributes and certainly capable of causing great influence: but they were not the things that influenced us! For we came to know this group not just as a class, but as a group of widely-varying personalities! We saw and admired the faceless facade of group achievement, but we knew and grew very fond of the individuals behind it. Their influence on us, and our interest in them, grew because of our personal association with them. When we did look upon them as a group, we were not struck by the abundance of scholastic ability as much as we were by the equal abundance of humor, originality, and personal appeal of the individuals within this group.

The members of the Class of 1960 have meant far more to us than chronological superiors — they became our friends.

We all like to share our best moments with our friends; and our Senior year promises many wonderful moments for us; but this year's new-found friends will not be with us then. We will miss them very much, but we won't have to stay sad when they are "brought back" to us through the many happy memories of this year. At this point, we should bid them good-bye; but that word seems to convey such permanence: So instead, let's just say — Seniors, so-long.
